BAYARD AND BOYCE

Democratic State Convention Selected Ticket on Tuesday

NEW STATE COMMITTEE CHOSEN

Thomas F. Bayard, of Wilmington, was nominated in the Democratic State Convention at Dover, Tuesday afternoon for United States Senator for both the short and long term over former Judge William H. Boyce, of Dover, on the first ballot by a vote of 115 to 94. Mr. Bayard had nine more than enough votes as 106 was necessary for nomination. In forcing the nomination of Mr. Bayard, however, his friends left many sore spots, especially among the "drys" who bitterly opposed him.

Former Judge William H. Boyce, of Dover, was nominated for Congress by acclamation.

Not only did a woman preside over the convention, Miss Ellen Samworth, of Wilmington, but the convention also nominated a woman, Mrs. Mabel Frances Derby of Woodside, for Auditor of Accounts. After the convention had made the nominations for Senator and Congress it took but a few minutes to agree on the remainder of the ticket the other nominations being by acclamation. The ticket named follows:

Senator, both short and long terms—Thomas F. Bayard, Wilmington.

Congress—Former Judge William H. Boyce, Dover.

State Treasurer—Rowland E. Quillin, Laurel.

Auditor of Accounts—Mrs. Mabel Frances Derby, Woodside.

Insurance Commissioner—Norman Collison, Bridgeville.

For the Senatorial nominations James M. Tunnell, of Georgetown, proposed Thomas F. Bayard, and James H. Hughes, of Dover, suggested Judge William H. Boyce. The nominating speeches evoked applause.

The convention elected a new State Committee, the personnel of which was agreed on in the caucuses Tuesday morning. There is considerable speculation as to who will be elected State Chairman to succeed Henry R. Isaacs. The name of Francis deH. Janvier, of New Castle, has been suggested in this respect. The committee will probably meet next week to organize.

The members of the New Castle County Committee follows:

New Castle County—Matthew Ralston, Mrs. Anna Donohue, Samuel Maroney, Miss Marjorie Green, Charles F. Curley and Miss Ellen Samworth, of Wilmington; J. Raymond Frederick, Nell B. B Mousley, Miss Nora Stewart, Frank F. Yearsley, Eben B. Frazer, Francis deH. Janvier, Reba T. Holcomb, J. Leslie Ford, Mrs. A. M. Chamberlaine, Dr. Dorsey W. Lewis, Miss Marie Lockwood, Mrs. Grace B. Ross, W. A. Scott and Mrs. Susan West, of rural New Castle county.

Entertained Friends

Miss Edna Reynolds entertained a number of her friends at a "porch dance" at her home in Townsend last Friday evening. A delightful time was spent by Miss Reynolds' guests during the evening. Refreshments of fruit punch and cake were served.

Those present were: Misses Elizabeth Maloney, Mary Records, Margie Records, Margaret Brady, Elizabeth Brady Georgia Wiggin, Caroline Fouracre, Edna Reynolds; Kathleen Anderson, of Wilmington; Messrs Burton Pearson, Edwin Donaghay, Harris McDowell, P. L. McWhorter, Jr., Frank McWhorter, Harry Segelken, John Pool, Edward Hart, Harry Roberts, Harman Reynolds, Jr., and Paul Townsend, of Selbyville.

Mail Receptac'es

FIRST ASST. POSTMASTER GENERAL,
Washington, August 16, 1922.

Mail receptacles save the carriers time and hasten deliveries. It is therefore our desire to have a suitable receptacle of some character at every residence, and if possible, at business houses.

The absence of a mail receptacle not only tends to inconvenience the patron, but unquestionably results in inferior service through delaying the carrier on his route.

In the circumstances carrier delivery service should not be extended to any new dwelling not equipped with a suitable receptacle.

When a patron changes his residence he will be required to provide a receptacle at his new address before being accorded delivery service.

JOHN H BARTLETT,
First Assistant Postmaster General.

Buy Them Now

Have you bought your bonds for the new Opera House? If not you had better do so to-day. They are backed by securities that make them safe.

Negro Bootlegger Arrested

John Crump, colored, Philadelphia, plead guilty at a hearing Tuesday afternoon before U. S. Commissioner Cann, to charges of transporting and selling liquor.

He was arrested on Saturday night in Middletown by Federal Prohibition Agent Leroy, who claims to have bought a pint, then a quart of liquor from him. Later, Leroy charges, he found two and a half gallons in a motor car driven by the negro.

ST. ANNE'S CHURCH NOTES

EPISCOPAL

Sunday, Sept. 3d, 1922. The 12th Sunday after Trinity.

Services: 10.30 A. M. Sermon and Holy Communion.

11.45 A. M. Church School.

7.30 P. M. Evening prayer and address.

Service, Thursday, Sept. 7th, Holy Communion at 10.30 A. M. This service is at the request of the Presiding Bishop and Council, to commemorate the Triennial United Thank Offering of the Woman's Auxiliary, which meets in Portland, Oregon, during the meeting of the General Convention. Let us have every member of the parish branch of the Woman's Auxiliary present and other members of the parish.

Mrs. William D. Bradford is the delegate to the meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary, from St. Anne's Parish. And besides attending the Convention she is making an extended trip to the following places: Lake Louise, Vancouver and Victoria, B. C., Seattle, Washington; San Francisco, Merced, Yosemite Valley and Park, Los Angeles, California; and the Grand Canyon.

Our parish treasurer informs us that the parish has paid $500.00 of the missionary apportionment.

The Sunday School will re-open its sessions this Sunday after a vacation of several months. Let every member look forward to being present. The new lesson quarterlies beginning with September will be distributed, and parents are urged to assist in the work of our Sunday School by urging the children to attend every Sunday. We shall look for you.

A new Memorial Prayer Desk and Clergy Stall has been presented to the parish in memory of Eugene M. Hanson. It is of black walnut and conforms in design to the other Chancel furniture. It is hoped to have the Bishop in the near future dedicate this and several other memorials

"REMEMBER THE SABBATH"

It is not only a privilege, it is a duty to go to church. It is a duty you owe God, to yourself, to your family, to your city, to your fellow-men. What would happen if no one went to church, if the churches closed their doors, organs lay silent, choirs disbanded, clergy disappeared, Bible and Prayer Books mouldered to dust? Would you like to live in such a world? What are you doing to prevent such a catastrophe? Three bright, inspiring services each Sunday at St. Anne's and other churches. Come! the churches need you. You will find a hearty welcome.

FOREST CHURCH NOTES

PRESBYTERIAN

Sunday, September 3d, 1922.

10.30 A. M. Morning service. Sermon by the pastor.

11.45 A. M. Sunday School.

7.30 P. M. Evening service. Sermon by the Pastor.

Mid-week service every Friday evening at 7.30. This service will be a preparation for the communion which will be observed the following Lord's Day.

Boy Scout meeting this week will be on Thursday at 7.00 P. M.

We have had our month's vacation, and the order is that we report for service at 10.30 A. M., Sept. 3d, 1922. The church has no penalty to mete out to those who fail to report on time, but the work of the church will be handicapped in proportion as we fail to respond to the call for service. This is the call to "assembly" where God would speak to us as a people. You can have your private interviews with your commander and king, but you must not neglect to acquaint yourselves with the "general-orders" given to the whole army of the living God.

Such neglect, on your part, means a weakened service. God expects to meet with the worshippers in his sanctuary at the times and seasons appointed for worship. Do not let the conference fail by any failure on your part to attend and take part in it. We expect regular attendance on the part of our members and we cordially invite to all our services any persons in this community who may be without a church home. A welcome awaits anyone who may desire to worship with us.

Beginning September 1st, Fogel's store will be open every evening until 9 o'clock, Saturday until 11 o'clock.

Bethesda Church Notes

METHODIST

Sunday, September 3, 1922.

9.30 A. M. Devotional meeting of the Brotherhood.

10.30 A. M. Sacrament of the Lord's Supper in charge of the pastor.

11.45 A. M. Session of the Sunday School, in charge of the Superintendent.

7.30 P. M. The pastor will bring a Labor Day Message.

Prayer and Praise Service on Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock.

Now that September is here, and vacation days are over, we shall look for all the members and friends of Bethesda to be in their places at all the church services. "If every member of Bethesda Church talked, acted and attended the church services, just like me, what kind of a church would my church be?"

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Many Condensed News Items of the Past Week

IN THIS AND NEARBY POINTS

The Odessa public school will re-open September 11.

There is nothing under the sun that brings more joy and happiness to the public in general than the coming of the Circus.

The bond issue for the new Newark school building to be started in a short time, will be $160,000 instead of $165,000, as originally intended.

Townsend is to have a concrete street from the depot through its business section to join up with the concrete road to Ginns' Corner and Pine Tree

John Heldmyer, Jr., Real Estate Broker, has sold to A. Fogel, the store property and dwelling on Main street now owned and occupied by Harry Holtz.

Frank Hickman, of Port Penn, was elected State president of the Patriotic Order Sons of America at the closing session of the annual convention Wednesday.

Close co-operation on the part of the Delaware Coal Club was promised the Coal Commission Friday at a meeting held in the Belhaven Hotel at Rehoboth. Coal dealers from all parts of the State were present. The club authorized its executive committee to represent it in the arranging and execution of the program of the commission when completed and put into effect.

The Smyrna Firemen's Carnival came to a close Tuesday evening after one of the most successful weeks they have ever had. Not since the carnival enterprises were inaugurated eight years ago has greater crowds or more enthusiasm been displayed. The weather conditions in the main were ideal, the crowds were there every night and the order was good. The gross receipts will total about $8,500.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR FAIR

All plans are completed for the Delaware State Fair which opens at Elsmere on Monday. Every department of the Fair will show improvement and a majority of them more exhibits than ever before. Hundreds of competitors have entered their handiwork for the premiums offered and the judges will have the busiest and hardest job to decide winners they have ever experienced at any Delaware Fair.

The National Hereford Cattle Show will have 220 head of those big beef cattle from 18 herds scattered throughout the west. The exhibit of milk cows will be larger than any other year. Sheep and swine and chickens by the hundreds have been entered for prizes.

The dahlia show will be a place of beauty for lovers of flowers. Hundreds of blooms will be entered.

Boys and Girls Clubs from all over the state have entered the lists of contestants and their demonstration work will be big features of the exhibit.

The Horse Show will be one of the most attractive affairs ever arranged and scores of the finest horses in the country will be among the competitors.

The horse races the first four days of the week will afford the classiest trotting and pacing races ever seen at any Fair. On Friday afternoon thrilling automobile matches will provide the pep that can be found in no other mode of sport.

Vaudeville and band programs each day free of charge and in addition there will be plays and athletic demonstrations by the welfare organizations free.

For those who want lunch the churches and organizations furnishing the "eats" have aranged to provide the most palatable menus yet obtained at any Fair.

All things will be on a larger scale this year at the Fair than was ever attempted before. The success of the Delaware State Fair is assured.

Mr. Howell a Candidate

Mr. Charles S. Ellison, Jr., having declined to accept the nomination offered him at the St. Georges Hundred Republican meeting, Mr. Henry D. Howell has consented to accept the nomination, and will be unopposed at the Republican primaries on Saturday, September 9th. Mr. Howell is well qualified for this important position, and will doubtless receive the full indorsement of the Republicans at the November election.

Republican Meeting at Townsend

One of the largest Republican rallies ever held at Townsend, was held there Tuesday night. The meeting hall was crowded to the doors and those present were addressed by Levi L. Maloney, David P. Hutchinson and others.

During the meeting the following county ticket was endorsed: State Senator, Harry S. Woodkeeper; Representative, Harry O. Weatherly; Levy Court Commissioner, John D. Reynolds.

OBITUARY

Townsend Correspondent

James L. Dickinson

James L. Dickinson, a well-known business man and an extensive land owner of lower New Castle county, died at the Medico-Chi Hospital, Philadelphia, at 10 o'clock on Tuesday night, after an illness of several months duration, death being due to kidney trouble. When he first became ill early in the summer he went to the hospital for treatment and was apparently so materially helped by the medical skil and attention given at the institution that he decided to come home, believing that his condition would continue to improve, but after remaining here for a few weeks he suddenly become worse again and was compelled to return to the hospital for treatment, going back to the institution about ten days ago. His condition steadily grew worse. Passing into an unconscious state the aged resident survived but a few hours and the end came to relieve his suffering at the hour above stated.

Mr. Dickinson who was a good progressive citizen, was always ready to lend a helping hand to any deserving cause and this way he had gained the friendship of many who felt his kindness with more than a passing interest. He was a real friend to all and this noble characteristic endeared him to legions of friends in this community. As a citizen he advocated many improvements to the town, also conducting several enterprises that gave employment to as many of our residents as the business itself would permit. Although his death was not unexpected it gives his friends a great shock and will cause deep regret to all who knew him. About 40 years ago, Mr. Dickinson came to Townsend from Wilmington and embarked in the hotel business. His popularity and method of doing business so favorably impressed the public, that prosperity crowned his efforts from the start, and his well-merited success knew no bounds for many years. The traveling salesmen and others stopping at the hostelry all regarded him as a true friend as well as a first-class business man. Mr. Dickinson was 73 years of age and is survived by one son, J. Leonard Dickinson. His wife, Mrs. Mary Dickinson, died 30 years ago.

The funeral will take place at one o'clock this (Saturday) afternoon from his residence on Railroad avenue and will be conducted by the Rev. George P. Jones. Lester Daniels will be in charge of the funeral. Interment will be made in the Townsend M. E. cemetery.

W. Ray Jamison

W. Ray Jamison died suddenly at the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. John B. Bolton, near Cecilton, Md., Monday night about eleven o'clock. Mr. Jamison is a resident of Wilmington and he and his wife were on a visit at the home of Mr. Bolton, when he was taken with an attack of acute indigestion early Monday evening which resulted in his death a few hours later.

Funeral services were held at the residence of Mr. Bolton Friday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock. Interment took place in Warwick cemetery.

Smyrna Opera House

Monday and Tuesday—"The World's Champion"—A champion star in a knock-out picture is the ringer attraction for the Opera House next Monday and Tuesday with Wallace Reid in a most suitable role. Lois Wilson as his leading woman and a splendid cast including Lionel Barrymore, Henry Miller, Jr., Helen Dunbar, S. J. Sandford, Guy Oliver. The hero is the battling son of a meek, nobility-worshipping British commoner.

St. Paul's M. E. Church Notes

ODESSA, DELAWARE

Bishop John W. Hamilton, of Washington, D. C, will preach morning and evening at the reopening services September 3d.

The work which has been done is a credit and inspiration to the community.

It has been a decided success and the earnest effort of the Odessa people has been supplemented by liberal help from out of town friends who are interested in St. Paul's and the people of the congregation. It is gratifying to see the improvement in the appearance of the building and the added interest on the part of the members and friends.

The public is cordially invited to attend the services. Morning worship, 11.00; evening service, 7.30; Sunday School, 10 A. M. and Epworth League, 7.00 P. M.

The Sunday School Children's Day program which has been postponed on account of the improvements, will be rendered Sunday evening, September 10th, at 7.30.

Services at Old Union Church

Annual services will be held in Old Union Church, near Townsend, on Sunday, Sept. 10th. Morning service at 10.30 o'clock. Minister in charge of this service will be announced later. Afternoon services will be held at 2.30 o'clock, and Rev. T. R. VanDyke, of Cecilton, Md., will deliver the sermon.

Beginning September 1st, Fogel's store will be open every evening until 9 o'clock, Saturday until 11 o'clock.

CIRCUS DAY

The Circus is coming—holds many interests for every member of the family. For example, little Willie's behavior has been beyond reproach. He has seen the flaring posters announcing the coming of the circus and nightly chores are done with a precision which has caused mothers to take particular notice. Willie has felt the thrill.

The circus is an American institution—it is a recreation for all classes. Seated side by side, the youngsters of the rich are just as delighted and can gain no more enjoyment than the poorest orphan, and the daring feats of the bare-back riders, thrilling aerial acts and wholesome comedy of the clowns fall alike upon eyes and ears.

The special trains bearing the Campbell-Bailey-Hutchinson Combined Circus and Wild West will arrive in Middletown, Delaware, at daybreak Saturday, September 9th.

The glittering mile long free street parade will take place at noonday and there will be two complete performances at 2 and 8 P. M. Doors will open one hour earlier.

Watson—Fennimore Wedding

Miss Ethel Fennimore and William A. Watson, Jr., both of Blackbird, were quietly married at the M. E. Parsonage at Smyrna, by the Rev. Ransom P. Nichols, pastor of the Smyrna M. E. Church. The ceremony was performed at 9 o'clock Wednesday evening. The popular couple have the best wishes of The Transcript and their many friends, for a long and happy wedded life. The groom is well-known and deservedly popular in business as well as social circles, and is conducting a large mercantile business in Townsend. He is also interested in other business enterprises that are a real benefit to the community in which they are located.

Padley—Reed Wedding

Miss Catherine P. Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Reed, of this town and Mr. George H. Padley, son, of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Padley, of Cecilton, Md., were quietly married by Rev. Turner Jones, in Chesapeake City, Md., last Saturday afternoon, at five o'clock.

The couple were attended by the groom's parents. The bride was becomingly attired in a rose velour traveling suit, with hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Padley will reside in Cecilton, Md. The Transcript extends congratulations to the newly wedded couple.

IT IS "THE EVERETT"

Many Names Suggested by The Moving Picture Patrons

JUDGES UNANIMOUS IN CHOICE

Mr. James E. Lewis, proprietor of our new moving picture theatre asked his numerous friends two weeks ago, through the columns of The Transcript, to suggest an appropriate name for the new playhouse. In response to his request he received numerous suggestions as to what it should be called, but Justice of the Peace Daniel W. Stevens and Mrs Edward S. Jones offered what the judges considered the most appropriate name submitted, and as a result of the many suggestions the new moving picture theatre will be known as "The Everett." Mr. Stevens presented the name several hours before Mrs. Jones' letter was received but the genial promoter of our new playhouse decided to extend to Mrs. Jones also a complimentary pass to the theatre for one month—making two, instead of one ticket for the opening month.

The judges selected to determine the most suitable name were: Rev. P. L. Donaghay, Dr. R. R. Spahr, Prof. O. E. McKnight and Mr. Minors Banning.

MIDDLETOWN, DEL.
August 17, 1922

Mr. J. E. Lewis,
Middletown, Delaware,
My dear Mr. Lewis:

Pursuant to your notice in one of the Town papers asking for a suggestion for a name for your new Theatre, I am going to suggest a name which I think is a good one, not because I am suggesting it, but because I think it is due you and something that will be a memorial to you and your family for your untiring efforts in giving Middletown, a Theatre that is to be proud of. The name I suggest is "The Everett."

Yours very truly,
D. W. STEVENS.

MIDDLETOWN, DEL.
August 17, 1922

To Mr. Lewis and Judges:

I would suggest that the name for our new Theatre be "The Everett," in honor of our fellow-citizen, Mr. J. Everett Lewis, who has made it possible for us to have a clean and beautiful place of amusement.

U. S. OPERATION SHELVED

President Waits — Voluntary Coal Price Control System Abandoned Pending Action At Capitol.

Philadelphia.—Government intervention or seizure of mines in the anthracite strike situation will not take place it was learned here from a highly authoritative source. The information was given publication with the understanding that the informant's name be not disclosed for the present.

Further information from this source was to the effect that very soon, probably within a week, representatives of the anthracite operators and miners will sign a peace pact that will send 155,000 miners back to work, with neither side receding from its present stand to make no further concessions.

The Government continued to exert pressure to bring the two sides in the hard-coal controversy into agreement. Secretary of Labor Davis held a two-hour conference with John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and then returned to Washington, where it is understood that he will report to President Harding concerning the situation. Mr. Davis left the mine leader's room with barely time to get his train and refused to divulge anything that went on during the meeting or at previous conferences between him and the operators or miners. Mr. Lewis was equally taciturn.

An optimistic note was left by United States Senator Pepper just before boarding a train for Washington. Senator Pepper discussed the situation with both sides and with Secretary Davis while here.

"I believe this mine strike will be settled happily," he said. "The country is not going to go on a wood-burning basis, and we are going to have coal."

The agreement that will make possible the ending of the anthracite strike, according to the same source, will overcome the seemingly insurmountable difficulties which presented themselves at the meeting between anthracite operators and miners that ended in a deadlock last week. Details of the plan, however, were not made public.

SPECIAL SESSION FOR SUBSIDY.

Harding Determined To Push Ship Legislation.

Washington. — Congress may be called into special session in November, provided the present session adjourns meanwhile, to consider the Administration ship subsidy bill, it was stated at the White House. In agreeing to a delay in Congressional consideration of the measure it was said President Harding did not forego any intention of pressing the bill to a vote before the December session.

Calling of Congress into extraordinary sessions after the November elections, a spokesman for the Administration said, would depend large on whether conditions were considered propitious for favorable action on the proposal at that time.

TYPHUS MENACES WHOLE WORLD

Health Commissioner Copeland Shudders Over It.

New York.—The rapid spread of typhus to Poland constitues a menace to the whole world, said Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland on his return from Europe, where he has been studying health conditions.

"I shudder to think of the possibilities if the disease—practically unknown here—should creep into this city through a few infected immmigrants. It would kill a million persons in a month."

"Poland now," he added, "is an abscess in the body of the world. If it is not drained and cleansed the whole world will suffer."

560,863 ON U. S. PAYROLL.

Number Of Government Employees Reduced.

Washington.—The total number of Federal Government employees in the executive civil service on June 30 last had been reduced to 560,863, the civil service commission announced, as compared to a total of 917,760 on armistice day and 438,057 at the end of the last fiscal year before the United States entered the war.

MISS BAKER SOON TO WED.

Says She Will Surely Be Bride Of Allister McCormick.

London.—Miss Mary Landon Baker, of Chicago, was quoted by the Evening News as saying she would finally go to the altar with Allister McCormick "some time before the end of the month" and "somewhere in London. Their repeatedly postponed marriage has caused considerable comment during recent months.

TO ACT ON MUSCLE SHOALS.

House Republicans Promise Vote On Henry Ford's Offer.

Washington.—Muscle Shoals occupied the attention of the House again Friday during most of its brief session. Demands came from the Democratic side for immediate consideration of the Henry Ford offer and were met with assurances from Republicans that final action would be taken at the present session of Congress, but not until after the contemplated recess.

350,000 OFF U. S. PAYROLL

But Number Of Officeholders Still 122,860 Over 1916.

Washington.—More than 350,000 officeholders have been dropped from the Federal Government's payrolls since the signing of the armistice, the Civil Service Commission reported.

The total now on the payrolls was given as 560,863, compared with 917,760 on November 11, 1918.

The Federal officeholding force, however, is still 122,806 greater than in 1916, but the commission says that probably 100,000 of this number can be charged to the war.

U. S. REFUSED TO FINANCE ALLIES

British Take Issue With Secretary Mellon

ASSERTS LONDON ASKED AID

Claims America Declined To Take Responsibility Off British—Most Of Money Spent In U. S.

London.—The statement issued by Secretary of the Treasury Mellen on the British debt situation was followed by a statement from an authoritative British quarter here, saying, in part:

"It is true that, with the exception of the sum of about $140,000,000 which was lent to the British Government to be immediately re-lent to Russia for the purpose of Russian dollar expenditures in the United States, the whole proceeds of the United States Government's advances to Great Britain were applied toward meeting Great Britain's expenditures in the United States.

"But it must, at the same time, be remembered that had Great Britain not been compelled to make advances to its allies for their expenditure in the British Empire and neutral countries it would have been unnecessary for it to apply to the United States Government for financial assistance.

"Must it be forgotten," says the statement, "that early in 1918 Great Britain pressed the United States Government to relieve it of the responsibility for financing the Allies and offered in return to finance all its own expenditures in the United States without borrowing from the United States Government, but the American Government declined to agree to that proposal?"

JERUSALEM WORLD'S CAPITAL.

League Of Nations Jews Idea, Says Dr. Sokolow.

Carlsbad.—"The League of Nations is a Jewish idea, and Jerusalem some day will become the capital of the world's peace," declared Dr. Nahum Sokolow, chairman of the Zionist executive committee, at a special meeting of the Zionist Conference. "The League has recognized our rights to our ancient home," Dr. Sokolow continued. "We Jews throughout the world will make the League's struggle our own and will not rest until there is ultimate victory."

R. R. MEN ASK PAY RAISE.

First Step For Increase For All Railroad Employes Taken.

Chicago.—The first step for a general increase of wages of all railroad employes was taken here before the United States Railroad Labor Board.

Four hundred thousand maintenance-of-way men asked that their minimum wage be fixed at 48 cents an hour. The present minimum is 23 cents.

If the Labor Board grants a wage increase to the maintenance men other rail unions will immediately ask for a rehearing of their wage scales.

"WETS" WIN REFERENDUM.

Sweden Votes Against "Volsteading" The Nation.

Stockholm.—The "drys" seem to have lost the day in the Swedish prohibition plebiscite, according to the latest provisional returns available. The figures issued are 772,747 for and 846,536 against.

Among the principal centers the vote is given as:

Stockholm, 21,906 for, 138,300 against; Gothenburg, 19,603 for, 51,487 against; Helsingsfors, 3,634 for, 12,552 against; Nalmo, 6,767 for, 32,836 against.

GERMANS HOLD AMERICAN.

Woman Is Accused Of Aiding Jewelry Swindle.

Munich.—The Muenchener Neueste Nachrichten reports that an American woman named Katharina Gray, 37 years of age, has been arrested in Munich. The newspaper says she had been sought by the police of Brussels for alleged knowledge of swindling operations involving jewelry worth 2,500,000 Belgian francs.

PROFESSOR KILLED IN FALL.

Wright McCormick Meets Death On Mexican Mountain.

Mexico City.—Wright McCormick, professor at the University of Texas, and son of the editor of the Geographical Survey, was killed when he fell 30 feet into a gully of Mount Ajusco, near here. According to W. C. Green, an American, and other members of the party, McCormick fell while attempting to scale the mount. Green told authorities McCormick was dead when they reached him.

FRANCE REJECTS GERMAN OFFER

Poincare Refuses Debt Guarantees From Stinnes

BRITISH APPROVE PROPOSAL

London Envoy Still Trying To Prevent Occupation Of Ruhr—Stinnes Offer Delivered.

Paris.—Premier Poincare has rejected the eleventh-hour guarantees offered by the German Government, and independent measures by France against Germany seems assured after failure of the reparation mission to obtain in Berlin the basis of a compromise acceptable to France.

In well-informed French circles it is considered reasonably certain that the Reparation Commission will grant a moratorium for the rest of the year, with the final German proposals as an additional guarantee.

The German proposals, handed to the reparation mission just before it left for Paris, provided for a contract between the German Government and the biggest German industrialists, including Hugo Stinnes, for delivery during the period of a moratorium of products of the Ruhr mines and wood from the state forests. German industry would guarantee faithful delivery, and penalties would be enforced against the industrialists in the event the schedule was not lived up to.

Details of the scheme were to be submitted by Germany next week, but the French Premier rejected the plan after a conference with Louis Dubois, head of the Reparation Commission, and M. Mauclere. The Premier's opposition is said to be due to the fact that he believes the scheme made the industrialists more important than the Government, since the business party in Germany is in a position to dictate to the Government. Refusal to carry out the contract, he held, would leave the German Government powerless to act, and France would be as bad off as before.

The British think these proposals fairly meet M. Poincare's demand for the German mines and forests by actually giving France the products of these natural resources without handing the district over to political control. The district in possession of France, it is contended by the British, would only add chaos to the already critical situation.

Sir John Bradbury, just before the meeting of the Reparation Commission said he was convinced that Germany really wants to meet the French view, and he urged that the French Government meet Germany half way. Sir John authorized the publication of the following statement:

"I am satisfied that the German Government is making a serious effort to meet the views of the French so far as the actual situation in Germany will permit. I am strongly of the opinion that the French Government ought to do its best to meet the German Government half way."

WILL ON BACK OF PHOTO.

Odd Document Disposes Of Effects Of Roma Victim.

New York.—Written on the back of a photograph and minus the signatures of witnesses usually required, one of the most unusual wills on record has been admitted to probate in the Surrogate's Court here.

The document disposes of the effects of James Murray, Master Sergeant of Airship School Detachment, U. S. A., who was one of the enlisted men killed in the airship Roma accident at Langley Field last February. The photograph on which the combination will and letter is written was taken May 14, 1913.

MARK TIME ON REPARATION.

Allied Commissioners Avoid Taking A Direct Vote.

Paris.—Members of the Allied Reparations Commission will spend the next three days in an effort to reach some form of compromise which will avoid a direct vote on the question of a moratorium for Germany. The idea is to leave in suspense a general reparations settlement, if possible, until the projected Allied conference is held in November.

BANK VAULTS BLOWN.

Robbers Make Way With $10,000 In Canada.

Winnipeg, Kan.—Robbers blew open the safe of the Bank of Hamilton branch at Killarney and escaped in an automobile with $10,000 in cash. Persons living near the bank heard an explosion about 2:30 A. M., but the robbery was not discovered until three hours later.

HOUSE TO STAY ON JOB.

Washington.—No early recess or adjournment of the House is in prospect, Majority Leader Mondell said in response to a speech in the House by Representative Moore (Democrat), Virginia, who declared that in view of the industrial situation Congress "would not dare run away."

SOLDIER FOUND MURDERED.

Two German Girls Held For An Investigation.

Coblenz.—Private Lester Irons, of Toms River, N. J., a member of a provisional military police company, was found in a pool of blood with part of his head shot away, outside the garage of Major General Henry A. Allen, in command of the American forces of the Rhine. Private Irons had been on guard duty at this post. Two German girls are being held for investigation.

BABY WHISTLES LIKE BIRD

Nine-Month-Old Ohio Boy Rivals Canary.

Youngstown, Ohio.—Claim is made that Mervin, nine-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Heyman, of this city, "can whistle like a canary." "He's been whistling since he was six months old," declared the proud father. "I'm sure he is the champion baby whistler of the world. Why, when that boy grows up he ought to be in great demand. Think what Mr. Sousa would give to have such a whistler in his band!"

AMBUSH LEADER DESERTS REBELS

Tom Hales, Who Commanded Force That Killed Collins

COLLINS' BROTHER SEIZED

Dead Hero Lies In State—Brother Captured By Irregulars On Way To Funeral And Held Over Night.

Cork.—Tom Hales, who led and accepted the responsibility for the ambush which killed Michael Collins, repudiated it, threw down his arms and offered to join the National forces.

Hales is the brother of Sean Hales, a pro-treaty member of the Dail Eireann, and has been a fierce opponent of the treaty. It is not known whether his offer to join the Nationals will be accepted.

He and his sister on last St. Patrick's Day set fire to the platform at Bandon where a demonstration in favor of the treaty was being held under the auspices of his brother Sean and Canon Cohalan, parish priest of Bandon.

His present change of front is regarded as significant and as giving point to the prevailing belief that the death of Michael Collins may not have been in vain, as Hale's action may animate his comrades to do likewise.

Sean Collins, proceeding from Clonakilty to attend his brother's funeral, had a trying experience. He was arrested on the Bandon-Macroon road by irregulars, who taunted him with lacking the courage "to stand up and be plugged" and spoke jubilantly of having "plugged McKeen, the traitor," referring to his brother Michael.

Sean Collins remained in custody over night, but was released later.

Dublin.—Draped in the beloved tricolor of Ireland, the coffin containing the body of Michael Collins, slain chief of Ireland's new Free State Government, was landed here from the steamer Classic and borne through the streets amid an impressive tribute from the assembled multitude.

General Collins' body was met at the dock by large throngs of mourners, including Richard Mulcahy, chief of staff, and other prominent representatives of the army. The body was taken on a gun carriage, preceded by a band of pipers to St. Vincent's Hospital.

Prayers were said as the procession passed in silence, broken only by the distant crack of snipers' rifles in various parts of the grief-stricken city.

Immediately behind came an armored car bristling with rifles held at all angles, comprising an incongruous ending to the mournful procession.

Regular officers draped the plain oak casket in the Free State colors and placed it on the wooden platform built on the 18-pounder gun carriage. The dead General's charger was led riderless alongside.

Collins lay dressed exactly as he met death, the uniform bearing the crimson stain which told the story of the end. Poignant scenes were witnessed in the little chapel as the mourners came and went.

Miss Kitty Kiernan, Collins' fiancee, and his sister, Miss Powell Collins, were among the first to enter the chapel.

Meanwhile, nuns moved silently to and fro in the pale light of the candles. Sir John Livery stood beside the coffin with a canvas painting, the historic portrait of the dead hero.

The Irish Government will be continued on the lines marked out by Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins, whose views, freely exchanged with their Cabinet colleagues, anticipated the necessities of the whole situation. No new lines of policy are contemplated.

The ministry needs little reconstruction; Arthur Griffith held no portfolio, and Michael Collins had been obliged to lay aside his duties as finance minister owing to his more urgent task as commander-in-chief. Any pressing financial matters was attended to by other officials, Mr. Collins having organized a very competent financial staff.

Good Printing

THE kind of printing that pays dividends is the kind you should have. Pale, muddy, poorly arranged printed matter is worse than none. The quality of your business is often judged by the quality of your stationery — inferior printing gives an impression of cheapness that is hard to overcome, while good printing carries with it a desirable suggestion of quality.

We produce only Quality Printing. Whether you want an inexpensive handbill or a letterhead in colors, if you order it from us you will be sure of getting good work. We have the equipment and the "know how" that enables us to get out really good printing—printing that impresses people with the good taste of its users. That is the only kind of printing that

The Big Muskeg

By

VICTOR ROUSSEAU

Copyright by STEWART KIDD COMPANY

—11—

Now Wilton had succeeded. Big Muskeg was conquered, and on the east shore the vanguard of the line was driving the cleared way forward and pegging out the way for the metals. Soon grading would begin. Wilton's camp would shrink, and the engines would be moved ahead, and—he would have time to think.

He dreaded that. He had not seen Molly or the factor since that night of the subsidence. He knew that Bowyer had paid more than one visit to the store, but he shrugged his shoulders and put it out of his mind.

The workmen, after their months of arduous labor, had begun to grow slack. There was restiveness in the camp. Once or twice Wilton had seen signs of liquor. He detected it in the slowing up of work; he had smelled it in the bunkhouses—the penetrating odor of cheap alcohol, with its suggestion of gasoline.

Andersen, forestalling him, came to him about the time of this discovery.

"They're getting that rot-gut again, Mr. Carruthers," he said. "I don't know where. I'm keeping my eyes peeled, but I ain't said nothing."

"The best policy," said Wilton. "The men have worked hard. When this job's finished we'll let them slack up for a day or two. Then we'll get down to business on this proposition. But if you find out anything let me know at once."

A few days later came the spanning of the swamp. On the same afternoon a summons came from the court, together with a letter from Quain. The police had at last picked up Papillon and Passepartout, and had recovered the rifle and transit compass. Wilton was wanted in Clayton to give evidence against the men.

The call was opportune. Wilton had already determined to put into execution a plan that he had formed. It was now October, and little more than two months remained before the loan would be called. That would give Bowyer the control of the Missatibi. Driven by the ironical realization that he was working for Bowyer, Wilton had resolved to go to Clayton as soon as the trestling was completed, and try to raise the money to pay Phayre, who, he knew, would not renew the note.

Big Muskeg was spanned. And, on the strength of that, Wilton believed the time had come to give Joe's secret to the world. He would publish far and wide the secret of the wheat lands. He would establish sufficient confidence in the line to make the raising of a loan a possibility.

Before leaving he placed a night guard on duty over the office, and arranged with Andersen to have three or four reliable men on watch in the event of the laborers attempting to cross the portage. He went to Clayton and laid his statement before a directors' meeting. They heard him in frigid silence.

"That's an old story," said Curtis, the vice-president, when he had finished.

An angry wrangle followed, which led nowhere. They flatly refused to spend any money on advertising. All the while, Phayre, leaning back in his chair, looked on and took no part in the proceedings.

"It comes to this," said Curtis finally, thumping the table energetically.

"That's an Old Story," Said Curtis, the Vice-President, When He Had Finished.

"We'll have to increase our capital. The delay has eaten into our reserves. We'll have to push straight toward our objective, the Transcontinental. Then we'll have the monopoly of a steady freighting business."

He could not get them to listen to the story of the wheat lands. Wilton wanted to advertise it widely, to open it up to homesteaders. He had plans for elevators. But the directors, who resented Kitty's control, were dead against him, and he got no thanks for what he had done.

The following morning the Sentinel—Phayre's paper—came out with a cartoon showing a widow dropping her mite into a bottomless pail marked "Missatibi," which boiled over a slow fire of wheat stalks.

Somebody had betrayed the secret, thus forewarning Bowyer and enabling him to open his campaign to deride it. But Wilton would not open his mind to suspicion.

He took counsel with Jim Betts. The old man was frankly pessimistic.

"It looks to me," he ruminated, "as if them two snakes'll get the line. Joe must have been mad, or mighty hard put, when he hypothecated them shares." He turned to Wilton. "What d'ye want to worry about it for, anyway?" he asked. "If Joe took a chance like that, he couldn't have felt too strong about it."

He laid his hand on Wilton's shoulder. "Whisky's good," he said in his odd way. "So's ginger pop. But the mixture's h—ll. So's women and business, boy. I'd help ye with that loan if I could see my way. But I can't. I've been stung too bad already, and I've got a grandson to look after. Ye'd better make terms with Phayre."

This was one of the worst blows that had fallen. If Betts had lost faith, who would have kept it? He understood the allusion to Kitty. Betts thought he was in love with her. Then so must other people.

He was due at the court that day, and gave his evidence. The half-breeds received each six months in the penitentiary—a light sentence, on the jury's recommendation. Afterward Wilton had a talk with Quain.

The two men had sullenly refused to give any reason for their flight. If the outlaw Hackett had advised them, they did not put in that plea.

The jury had believed that one of them had accidentally shot Joe, and that this had been the cause of their disappearance. So did Quain, apparently.

"I'm afraid, Will, that we can't hope for anything fresh upon that subject," he said.

This business done, Wilton went to see Kitty, swallowing his pride. After all, it was for Joe that he was pleading. Kitty received him in the old friendly manner, with a touch of reserve that should have put him on his guard. But he began eagerly.

"Kitty," he said, "you know we've crossed the Muskeg."

Then Kitty showed her claws.

"I was so glad when I heard of it, Will," she said. "You've been trying to do that all the summer, haven't you?"

"Why—yes, of course," said Wilton, looking at her in astonishment.

She put her hand on his arm with a caressing gesture. "Do tell me what a muskeg is, Will," she said. "I've heard you speak of it so often, and I can never remember the meaning of those words."

And with that the last of Wilton's illusions fell from him, leaving him face to face with stark reality. He faced Kitty very gently.

"Kitty, listen to me now," he said. "I've been in this game for Joe—and for you. When Joe died I saw that we'd have to fight hard to keep the line. I saw a lot of money in it, later, and meanwhile you'd have enough to live on, so that we could use your capital and your control to carry out Joe's plans."

"Yes, Will," said Kitty, with the air of one who listens wearily to a lesson.

"Joe's borrowing on those shares has changed everything. The loan has to be repaid before the year is out. If it isn't, you lose the line. They'll wreck it, and they'll wreck your fortune, and that of the other investors. Then they'll reconstruct. When the line has ceased to have any value at all, Bowyer and Phayre will have a new line of their own. Do you understand?"

"I'm trying to, Will," said Kitty. "But what do you want me to do?"

"I'm proposing this for your sake, Kitty. If you sell your property in Winnipeg you can raise three or four hundred thousand. I believe I could borrow the rest. That will meet Phayre's loan, and you'll hold the line. It's the only way, because no bank would lend you money on the rest of your shares now, after Bowyer's campaign against us. And he's made the most of the subsidence. It's speculative—what I'm suggesting. But Joe would have done it. And in a few years it'll mean millions."

"Are you sure, Will?" asked Kitty, eagerly.

"Not sure, Kitty, but nearly sure."

"Will, you are Joe's executor. Do you advise me to take that risk?"

"No!" said Wilton sharply.

"But you just said—"

"As Joe's executor, I can't. It's not sound business. An executor dares not advise throwing away a certainty for a speculation. As Joe's executor—no!"

"Then why did you advise me to?" asked Kitty innocently.

"Because I thought you cared for the line, Kitty. Because I thought you shared Joe's dream for the future of the Missatibi. I thought that, even if you lost, you'd have your house here, and your forty thousand, and you'd feel—that you'd done what Joe would have wanted. As your executor I say, sell out to Phayre before it's too late. At least—at least—"

He could get no further. Kitty looked up into his face. "Will, I know how you feel," she said softly. "I'm so sorry. I've done what you wanted, Will. But I haven't done it for Joe. I've done it for you. Will, you've made your own obstacles. You've never understood me. It's you I want to help; it's you I want my money for, Will."

Afterward Wilton could not imagine how he had found strength to resist her. With Molly lost, Jim Betts himself counseling surrender, and Kitty caring nothing for the line, why did he not let it go? In that black hour the temptation of her presence, the human love that was his for the taking, screamed their weak counsel in his ears.

It may have been the fiber of Puritan ancestors, or simply the inborn instinct to fight to the end, that gave him his strength. But he did not know how he left her till he found himself in the street.

He went to the bank, the last place, and the last, hopeless effort, foredoomed to failure. He went into Phayre's office.

"Good morning, Mr. Carruthers," said the president. "What can I do for you?"

"Big Muskeg's bridged," said Wilton. "That should send up the value of the shares. I suggest that you renew Mr. Bostock's loan when it falls due."

"My dear Mr. Carruthers, that's a queer proposition to make to me!" said Phayre. "You're not a simpleton. Need I say anything more?"

"You know the collateral is good."

"Good? It's splendid! I only wish all our paper was as reliable."

"Well? Other banks may think the same—"

"But they won't," said Phayre, smiling. "In ten years, when those wheat lands are in bearing, this will be the newest granary of Canada. Only, they don't know it."

"How do you know it, then?"

Phayre chuckled and began to drum his fingers on the desk.

"You pledged your word to the directors," he answered. "Of course, there were rumors of it before. But your word is good enough for me, Mr. Carruthers. I'm a booster for Clayton. I believe in those wheat fields—and I'm going to have them. Better throw up your job, Carruthers, and take one with us. What do you say?"

"I'm going back to work for you and Mr. Bowyer right away," said Wilton. "At least I guess it looks like coming to that. But I've got my job to finish—and I'm going to do it."

CHAPTER X

The Abysmal Depths.

Molly did not see Bowyer for two months after Kitty's departure. His next visit was as unexpected as all of his. It was in the afternoon, and the girl came back from a walk along the shore to see him seated in the store, sleek, red, and self-satisfied, and her father standing beside him, with that look of awful fear on his face. She had a momentary impression as if the factor stood up like a well man; but, as she entered, the right leg went dragging under him, and the arm fell limp at his side.

"How d'ye do, Miss McDonald!" called Bowyer. "I just dropped in to have a chat with the factor in passing. Big things happening here, eh? The Missatibi's mighty slow in crossing Big Muskeg."

Molly flamed at the insult to Wilton. She looked at her father, and the expression on his face went to her heart. She turned swiftly to Bowyer.

"I don't want you to come here again," she said.

He started up, spluttering. "We don't want you," she continued. "And we won't be persecuted by you. There's law in this country."

He burst into mocking laughter. "You never spoke a truer word, Miss McDonald!" he cried. "I came here as a friend."

"You can go as an enemy!" she retorted. "And you can go now. And remember—there are men about here who can use a whip!"

He glared at her, but went without a word, and Molly ran to the factor.

"He's torturing you!" she sobbed. "I don't know what his power over you is, but he mustn't come here again!"

A few days later Bowyer went in to Clayton and, by chance, his visit coincided with Wilton's.

When Wilton left her house, Kitty sank down into a chair, clasping and unclasping her fingers nervously. The first time when Wilton had repulsed her, she had been too humiliated and conscience-stricken to bear him resentment. Her visit to Molly had been a sudden evil impulse, which, when done, she had attempted to justify.

She had, of course, succeeded. Gradually she had begun to look upon herself as a deeply wronged woman. When a woman loves, love is its own justification for acts done in its name.

On the second occasion of her advances to Wilton she saw by instinct that she had almost conquered. She saw, too, that, having lost, she had lost forever. She might win Wilton yet, but never in that way.

Now she would go to any lengths to oust Molly. Molly had never written to her since her departure, and she did not even know if her scheme had succeeded in estranging her from Wilton. But she inferred success from Wilton's bearing. He had not looked like a successful lover.

Bitterly she reflected on her marriage with Joe. She had never loved Joe, but neither had she hated him. She had loved Wilton, and, bound by tradition and social circumstances, she had concealed it. Then—Joe had died. Everything had seemed possible. And Wilton had engaged himself to another—to her best friend. Kitty was not a bad woman, but she meant to fight for her own. She would win Wilton, cost what it might.

When, therefore, late on the day after he had called on her, the maid announced Tom Bowyer, who had never been in her house before, she sent down word that she would receive him.

Kitty Came Downstairs, to Find Bowyer in the Parlor.

Neither Wilton nor Bowyer was aware that the other was in Clayton when Bowyer called, nor did they meet.

Kitty came downstairs, to find Bowyer standing in the parlor, twirling his hat in his hands. There was a singularly vulpine look on the red face. For an instant Kitty shuddered inwardly. Her passion for Wilton was taking her into unrelished companionships.

She asked him to sit down. "I'm pleased to see you, Mr. Bowyer," she said. "It was very good of you to call."

Bowyer uttered a short laugh. "I'm not a calling man, Mrs. Bostock," he said, "and the ladies don't like me. They know too much about me."

"That's very poor taste on their part," said Kitty.

"That's as may be. I came here on business."

"I'm glad to see you on business, then," said Kitty.

Bowyer looked at her in admiration. "I see we understand each other," he said. "That's what I like. You ought to have been a man. Not but what you'd have been spoiled if you had been," he added, with a clumsy effort at a compliment.

Kitty laughed outright. "Now I know you have come to get something," she said.

"Not exactly. We've fixed things so that you'll be able to pull out about Christmas with your full investment. But suppose Carruthers makes trouble? Remember, you've done what you did for his sake as well as your own. You want to help him go into a more remunerative investment. You know that little affair of his is off?"

She started violently, and Bowyer did not need to await her answer.

"That's what I came to tell you," he went on. "So I know we can count on you to smooth things over if Carruthers begins to wonder. You're staunch, then?"

"You can count on me, Mr. Bowyer," answered Kitty, loathing herself and him. "But how about yourself? I understand from you that you were going slow. I hope you're not going too slow?"

"I'm going to speed things up soon," he answered, frowning. "What's happened helps things along. I don't know what the trouble was. I thought at first it was one of those lover's quarrels. But it's lasted." His face grew red. "I went there," he said thickly. "She wouldn't have anything to say to me. Ordered me off the place."

Bowyer leaned forward confidentially. "See here, Mrs. Bostock," he said. "If I get her out of the way—if I guarantee that Will Carruthers and she won't meet again, how'll that suit you?"

"You've changed your mind about marrying?"

"Maybe yes. Maybe no. I'm not a marrying man. Nobody is. It's generally an accident—or a trap. But I can promise you there'll be no trouble from that quarter. Also, that she'll be out of the district before winter."

YOUNG BOYS EXPERT HORSEMEN

Mongolian Youths at Home In the Saddle at an Astonishingly Tender Age.

If a daring traveler braves the dangers of a trip into Mongolia he is fascinated by the natives at the time of their summer festivals. Then every Mongolian family puts on its best bibs and tuckers and goes to the fair, much in the same way the people in our own country sections go to the county fair. However, at the Mongolian county fair one does not "hit the baby" and get a five-cent cigar, or throw rings at canes to obtain a prize, but one does see horse races.

Instead of sitting in a grand stand and watching the entire race, as you do here, you see only the start or finish. For the races in Mongolia are 80 miles long.

The Mongolians are great horsemen, and learn to ride at a very early age. Their lives are spent with and on horses. The women ride as well as the men, and by the time a boy has reached the age of ten he is an expert horseman. In fact, the jockeys are ten-year-old boys.

These little fellows are mounted on the very fast Mongolian ponies, without saddles. Their only trappings are a bridle, a whip and a handkerchief.

They start on their wild ride over the steppes with the courage and spirit of men, whipping their horses fiercely, but often reaching over kindly to wipe the dust from the eyes and nostrils of their ponies.

Falsehood's Goodly Outside.

"What has become of the men who used to sell gold bricks?"

"I dunno," answered Uncle Bill Bottletop. "I guess they've got themselves a supply of counterfeit labels an' gone into the bootleg business."

Probably Eve was so called, Gerald, because she arrived in the late afternoon.

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 3

NEHEMIAH REBUILDS THE WALLS OF JERUSALEM

LESSON TEXT—Neh. 3:1-7:4.

GOLDEN TEXT—Our God will fight for us.—Neh. 4:20.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Neh. 2:9-20; I Cor. 3:9-17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How God helped Nehemiah Build a Wall.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How a City Wall Was Rebuilt.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Praying, Watching, Working.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Success Through Leadership and Cooperation.

Having secured a leave of absence from the Persian court, and credentials from the king, Nehemiah journeyed to Jerusalem. After resting three days without disclosing his purpose to any one, he made a survey of the walls by night. Having thus obtained first-hand information he called the representatives of the Jews together and said, "Let us build the walls of Jerusalem." He then made known the hand of providence in bringing him to Jerusalem with the authority to rebuild its walls. He thus showed great wisdom in finding out for himself the real conditions and what work would be required to restore the walls. The one who is qualified to lead in a great undertaking is the one who has mastered the situation and is thus able to remove objections and show how the work can be done.

I.—Preparation for the Building (ch. 3).

The division of labor in this project shows Nehemiah's administrative ability. A wise distribution of labor makes difficult tasks easy. There was not only evident wisdom in the division of labor, but the record of the family heads entrusted with this important work would mean much to their descendants in future years. Men would do their utmost if they knew that their descendants could know in future years that they had a part in the rebuilding of the temple, just as men today do exploits in order that the record may be left to their descendants.

Note some outstanding features of this great work.

1. Stress Laid Upon Indifference (3:5) In administrative tasks it is just that unfaithfulness should be pointed out. Such action will be a warning to some and an encouragement to others by showing the integrity of the director.

2. Help Rendered by the Women (3:12). Perhaps Shallum had no sons to aid him. It is a fine thing for women to be able to take hold even in building a wall when there are no men to do it. God's word carefully notes such extraordinary acts.

3. Stress Laid Upon Earnestness of Some (3:20). If one knows that his faithfulness will be recognized he will earnestly pursue his tasks.

4. Every One Built Over Against His Own House (3:10, 23, 28). Man's chief concern is for his family. No incentive to exertion is quite so strong as that which concerns his own family.

5. Certain Guilds of Men Undertook Certain Work (ch. 3:8, 31, 32). Wise administration sometimes calls for such alignment of efforts. Men of the same class and craft will usually work better together.

II. Hindrances Encountered (4:1-6:14).

1. Scoffing of Sanballat and Tobiah (4:1-6; cf. 2:19-20). The opposers of God's servants usually begin by hurling at them shafts of ridicule. They called the Jews but a feeble folk and asserted that the tread of a prowling fox would break down their stone wall.

2. Conspiracy of a Sudden Attack (4:7-9). When the enemy saw that the work was actually succeeding they changed from ridicule to an attempt to throw the workmen into a panic and thus hinder the work. When the enemy cannot succeed by scoffing then he resorts to intimidation.

3. Conspiracy With the Jews (4:10-23). They sought by means of the Jews from the outside to discourage their brethren by showing that the task was hopeless and that at any time they were subject to a sudden and secret attack.

4. Greed and Oppression of the Rulers (5:1-13). The Jews of that day, like the profiteers in the recent World war, took advantage of the poor and oppressed them so that they mortgaged their land and sold their daughters into slavery. Nehemiah boldly rebuked them for their crimes and ordered a restoration to be made, exacting an oath of them that they would fulfill their promises.

5. Scheme to Take Nehemiah's Life (6:1-14). When Sanballat and Tobiah failed in every other way they sought by craft to get Nehemiah away that they might kill him.

III. The Wall Completed (6:15-7:4).

So energetically did they pursue their tasks that in fifty-two days the wall was completed. When the enemies heard that in spite of all their schemes the work was actually completed, they were cast down, for they perceived that the work was of God.

Interested in Every Soul.

The more you realize how deeply interested God is in every soul, the more you will be inclined to believe in the Christian religion, which tells you what He did to show this love. To believe in the love of the Trinity drives you to believe in the incarnation and the descent of the Holy Spirit. —The Bishop of London.

SPEAKS FOR FARMERS

SECRETARY of Agriculture Wallace spoke for fully a third of our entire population when he said that the farmers of the country are weary of labor bickerings. It is the farmers who have been hit the hardest in the process of deflation, declared Mr. Wallace. He has prepared statistics showing that the purchasing power of the railway employee in 1921 was 51 per cent. greater than in 1913, of the coal miner 30 per cent. greater, of the farm laborer 4 per cent. less, and of the farmer himself from 25 to 45 per cent. less. In spite of the burden that the farmers have had to bear, they have endeavored to get relief solely by lawful means. They have appealed to the executive departments at Washington, to Congress, and to every other means that showed promise of aid. But while their efforts have not met with all the success they expected, the farmers have refrained from striking or creating disorder.

"They have kept on producing," Secretary Wallace reminds us, "and in the face of extraordinarily low prices have this year grown one of the largest crops in our entire history. The farmer believes in law and order; he believes in government; he believes in fairness between man and man; he believes in working hard and producing efficiently. If other groups would do as the farmer has done, our economic troubles would soon be over. Prices would soon be adjusted to their normal relationship. There would be work for everybody and at just wages.

"But there are too many people who seem to be thinking only of themselves and how they can profit at the expense of the community at large and especially at the expense of the farmer. The farmer is sick and tired of this sort of business. He is disgusted with these recurring disputes between capital and labor, especially as connected with the essential industries. He sees no reason why such disputes can not and should not be settled in an orderly and lawful way and without the interruptions of service which cost him so dearly.

"The farmer recognizes his obligation to produce food, for people must eat to live. He demands that both the owners of the coal mines and the coal miners recognize their equal obligation to produce coal, and he demands that the management of the railroads and the railroad workmen recognize also their equal obligation to keep trains moving, for unless the food he produces is moved promptly to market the people will starve.

"If the various groups in this country are determined to prey upon one another and abandon law and order for strong-arm methods, the farmer can take care of himself. He can reduce his production to his own needs. He can follow the example of some others and refuse to sell what he produced. But he does not believe in that sort of thing. He knows that such a policy would bring about in this great republic exactly the same sort of conditions that exist in Russia."

DEMOCRACY'S NOMINEES

THE Democratic State Convention of Tuesday last, was also an amicable affair, the following ticket being named without any visible friction:

Senator—Thomas F. Bayard, Wilmington.

Congress—Former Judge William H. Boyce, Dover.

State Treasurer—Rowland E. Quillin, Laurel.

Auditor of Accounts—Mrs. Mabel Frances Derby, Woodside.

Insurance Commissioner—Norman Collison, Bridgeville.

Not a few Democrats in the matter of Bayard for Senator and Boyce for Congress, think the Convention got the cart before the horse, that the ticket so far as these two nominees are concerned would be much stronger if turned around, the tail put where the head is and the head where now the tail is i. e. Boyce for Senator and Bayard for the House.

However, it pleases our Democratic friends, and since it is their funeral, Republicans "have no say." They think "Bayard" is a name to conjure with because of its historic memories, some, indeed, fancy they can erect anew the Bayard senatorial dynasty, though the wise know it's a bad time to urge dynastic claims in this day when ability (or politics) not blood is more in vogue, now that the people and not the legislatures decide these questions.

OUR present dye industry is one of the big beneficial results of the Great War. Two years after Germany was blockaded we had a dye famine because we had always been dependent on Germany for dyes. Temporarily Germany has been kept out of our dye market since the war. The average price of dyes in 1921 was 83 cents a pound, compared with a value of $1 08 in 1920 and $1.26 in 1917. "The tendency has been to reduce both the cost of production and sales price of dyes produced in the United States" says the U. S. Tariff Commission. And that is the general tendency with respect to other products under protection.

FROM a commercial center in Southern Virginia comes the report that in the first six months of 1922 more money was invested in building than was spent for the same purpose in the entire year 1921. It is gratifying to see this evidence of prosperity in the South. We hope Democratic campaigners will not forget it when they go out on the stump next Fall.

STATE AND PENINSULA

The season for shooting squirrels in Cecil county, Md., opened Friday, to continue until October 15.

Milford is arranging for a home week in conjunction with the firemen's fair and carnival the last week in September.

Second Assistant City Solicitor Hoch, of Wilmington, has entered more than 100 suits for collection of delinquent city taxes.

Twenty carloads of peaches rotted last week at the Chandler orchards, near Milton, having been damaged by a hailstorm.

Collection of Federal profit and income taxes in Delaware fell off $3,987,000 in the fiscal year of 1922. This is a decrease of 60 per cent. compared with 1921.

Unable to finance a new high schoo this year, New Castle is remodeling many buildings to permit of a more extended course, especially in laboratory work.

The Chamber of Commerce of Newark has offered a prize of $5 to the person submitting the best wording for signs to be erected at the entrances to the town.

The Milford public schools will reopen September 5 and, according to Professor Robert Schilling, supervising principal, there will be a record-breaking enrollment.

Emerson Hotel, at Betterton, Md., has been sold by its owners, A. P. Emerson, to Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Willis, at private sale. The new owners have taken possession.

According to announcement by the duPont Company in Wilmington, the smokeless powder division will be separated from the explosives department, beginning September 1. Vice President Felix duPont will be manager of this branch.

The Milford Emergency hospital has been given a complete Victor X-ray machine unit by the L. D. Caulk Co., of Milford. This hospital extends its service throughout lower Delaware and the new apparatus will be a useful and valuable supplement to the institution.

Gunning Season Opened

Middletown gunners have already gone over their guns and other shooting equipment in preparation for the State season for reed birds, rail birds and squirrels which opened September 1.

Many local residents have planned trips to favorite gunning grounds. Reports from the various gunners' rendezvous throughout the State promise a good season. The comparatively mild winter last year played little havoc with the game and the abundance of natural feed this summer has put all species of wild life in thriving condition.

The rail bird season will run from September 1 to November 1. The reed bird season runs only from September 1 to October 30. Under an order issued by the secretary of Agriculture, the Migratory Bird Treaty Act is suspended so that persons may shoot bobolinks, commonly known as reed birds, or rice birds, from a brief hour before sunrise to sunset.

The open season for squirrel, fox—black and gray—will run from September 1 to October 15.

Dollar For Dollar

When you buy any commodity, your first thought is to obtain the right value for your money. The same thought should guide you in your selection of securities.

And pay you seven per cent income all the while. The R. L. Dollings Co. Representatives, R. F. Fennemore, Middletown, Del., and R. H. Denney, Smyrna, Del.

The Key That Unlocks The Door to Long Living

The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund, well fed, but thin, spare men, who live on a slender diet. Be as careful as he will, however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much or of some article of food not suited to his constitution, causing indigestion or constipation and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to move his bowels and invigorate his stomach. When this is done, there is no reason why the average man should not live to a ripe old age.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Sealed proposals will be received by the State Highway Department, at its office, Dover, Delaware, until 2 o'clock P. M., Sept. 27, 1922, and at that place and time publicly opened, for the construction of State Highway, involving the following approximate quantities:

Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules Relieved Obstinate Intestinal Indigestion

L. H. Phillips, of 268 West 128th street, New York City, is one of the hundreds who heartily praise Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules. He recently wrote: "I have been afflicted for many years with an obstinate case of intestinal indigestion and constipation for which I have used many remedies with little benefit. A friend suggested the use of Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules and I take pleasure in certifying that they have been beneficial from the very start, and I heartily recommend them to others similarly afflicted."

This is but one of many testimonials coming from those eager to do their part toward spreading the knowledge of the relief they have experienced. Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules are guaranteed to give satisfying relief in dyspepsia, flatulence, gas on the stomach, indigestion and constipation or money will be refunded. They enable you to eat what you like and enjoy it to the full without discomfort.

Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules contain a number of reliable, standard medicines, acknowledged to be valuable in treating gastric and intestinal disturbances. Just one or two of the capsules and a swallow of water after each meal will aid in digesting your food properly without any disturbing effects. They will also improve your appetite, making the foods necessary to health appeal to your taste. If you have chronic dyspepsia, continue taking the capsules and they will tone up your stomach and assist in restoring health.

Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules are quick, sure stomach relief without fuss or bother. Try them today.

Fall Frocks Retain Old Lines;

Newest Coats Inclined to Flare

THE displays of new frocks for fall are convincing as to lines and drapery and very interesting in the matter of fabrics. Lines that are long and slender, in all kinds of dresses, retain their lead by a long way, the waistline remains about as low as ever and draperies that conform to the slender silhouette—that is, swathed draperies—are made much of. The coat-dress, in cloth or crepe, is well represented by many handsome models and is especially well adapted to autumn wear. "Not too long and still straight" is a safe summary of the mode.

The fall style point of most importance appears in interesting and lovely new fabrics that are supplementing the ranks of the noble army of crepes and twills. They are also reinforced by old favorites that have returned, with broadcloth and velvet among them. The colors most in evidence, brown and black, are particularly handsome in these fabrics and in the new matelasse and satin broche for afternoon gowns.

For all-day dresses poiret twill and broadcloth invite comparison in the two fall models illustrated. The twill at the left is a plain, undraped frock in which two-color silk embroidery and sequences of buttons rivet attention on themselves. Its collar and sleeves are graceful and it will make a strong appeal to women with full figures.

The straight-line frock of broadcloth at the right has elbow sleeves and is adorned with silk embroidery matching it in color and arranged in a new way on the skirt. This embroidery is repeated on the sleeves, which extend to the wrist only on the underarm and end in a wristband. The popular, loose-strap trim has been adroitly managed in this model in which a narrow belt of the material is supported by cloth slides. It holds in the fullness at the back.

The most desired silhouette in wraps and dresses for several seasons has cast a straight up and down shadow and its devotees seemed more than willing that this shadow should grow less. But when the one-piece dress and the straight-line coat could go no further in the direction of plainness it soon became necessary to vary the style with draperies and ingenious decorations. Now the pendulum is turning in the opposite direction and toward flaring lines. The change is most noticeable in new coats and wraps.

These fuller garments, that reveal an inclination toward circular lines, are not monopolizing attention by any means. They appear in the company of straight-line rivals, and a general change in the silhouette is sure to be slow, for many women will cling to the slender outline of the straight-line models, and the "wrappy" styles are not left out. Whatever the style chosen, fur collars and cuffs are everywhere present and the circular type of wrap is quite likely to be banded at the bottom with fur or to have full fur-banded panels set on at the sides. In the two handsome coats pictured there is more than a hint of the flaring silhouette, and the importance of fur is acknowledged. The coat at the right is made of panne velours and has a narrow belt of the material across the front and three box plaits down the back, with trimming of strap and tassels set between them. The large armholes are ingeniously managed, and caracul fur, in a light color, is used for collar and cuffs.

Dark taupe bolivia cloth serves for the simple, and rich coat at the left with its luxurious collar of dark gray squirrel. Tucks on the sleeves, which are full, show how effective this sort of decoration is in the heavy pile fabrics, and a long girdle of the cloth shares responsibility with a single large button for the front fastening. Both coats are about regulation length for utility coats, which is a little shorter than ankle length.

Style Note.

Variety is the watchword in the season's styles, but it is arrived at through the medium of interesting fabrics and color combinations rather than through novel style lines.

Muslin Pajamas.

Cool and comfortable for warm summer nights are the new pajamas of figured muslin, two-piece models with plain color, stitched with [illegible] pink or yellow. The [illegible] of flowers embroidered on the jacket and a dainty ruffle around the ankle. Others of a more utilitarian pattern have the loose trousers with a turned-back cuff. Sometimes there is a bit of embroidery or a smart little bow across the pocket. The buttons are usually pearl, large and disklike.

Color Combination.

A tiffin table, painted a soft French blue, sports a tea set of canary yellow china, with a medallion design in black.

Fad for Earrings

Becoming Quality of Decoration Is of Importance.

Bobbing Dangles Add Touch Needed to Complete Dress of Woman of Present Day.

Who would ever have supposed that earrings could be as fashionable in a modern day as they have come to be? They no longer can be considered as an article of jewelry; they are the article of jewelry, asserts a correspondent in the New York Times. Without earrings one is as nothing in the way of personality, for those bobbing trinkets mean everything. A gown is nothing without its accompaniment of earrings. The diamond sunburst of old was inconsequential compared to this new fad.

The becoming quality of the earrings cannot be overestimated. A woman who has never before thought of wearing anything of the sort purchases, in fear and trembling, perhaps, a pair of bobbing dangles for her ears. She dons them in some doubt. She eyes herself questioningly in the mirror. She does not know whether she can stand this new fashion. But when she steps out upon the street she finds that many admiring looks before denied her are now turned in her direction. She begins to throw her chin a trifle higher in the air, to give more swing and poise to those ornaments which, at first, she regarded so hesitatingly. She has realized that her whole costume, her whole bearing, her whole position in the world of well-dressed women, has gained—that, in other words, she has added the one touch needed.

Nowadays when a woman appears without earrings one wonders what makes her look so undressed. There is something subtle about the modern fashions which demands this extra decoration.

If one observes the design of the modern costume, whether it be day frock, wrap or evening gown, one can plainly see how, by its very simplicity, it demands just the sort of added decorative touch that earrings alone supply. A costume itself is complete in its own simplicity. Any added touch would only serve to spoil its general effect. That would not do at all. But, earrings—they are another matter. Add them to your draped crepe frock and see what they will do for it. They may bring it out of the commonplace into the ranks of individual types. Earrings do much to emphasize the type which is your own, the thing which, after all, is of more value to you than any dress in the world, for it emphasizes the characteristics which it has taken you years to build up and of which, after all, you should be justly proud.

Earrings of Cut Steel and Jet Worn With Cloth-of-Silver Comb.

SIMPLICITY IS THE KEYNOTE

Delightfully simple is this frock of apple-green trelaine and white silk crepe. Trelaine bands trim the unusually attractive sleeves.

AMONG NEW BLOUSE STYLES

Wearable Garments of the Season Include Crepe de Chine Models In Varied Colors.

When one applies the word wearable to new blouse styles it means more than the average reader is apt to glean, and it is with an idea of stressing the value of this adjective, that it is emphasized. One company has a comprehensive showing of blouses that are uniformly wearable and attractive. This manufacturer has concentrated on one price for all blouses, and they present tempting array of popular numbers.

Venise and St. Gall laces are used in profusion on the ruffled fronts of many frilled blouses. These are shown in white, pink and bisque georgettes of a good quality. A silk of crepe character has been employed in those overblouse models on middy lines. Yarn embroidery in bright colors makes most appropriate trimmings for these outdoor styles.

Crepe de chine blouses show a favoritism for medallion effects in their beaded embellishment, and the wide color range in which they make their appearance is one of the selling features of these styles. Cinder, ermine, canna and porcelain blue are a few of those shades most in demand at the moment.

In blouse numbers, with the literal meaning of the word, crepe de chine has been combined with a knitted fabric that forms the Peter Pan collar, cuffs, girdle and polo tie that finishes it. The full blouse effect of this model and the entire aspect of the knitted trimming make an ideal number.

LIKE LEATHER AND METAL BELTS

Combination of Materials and Colors Popular for Accessory; Are Exceedingly Smart.

Leather belts are not, perhaps, in the highest fashion. But for that very reason they hold out an interest to the woman who likes to dress with distinction. Correctly worn, they are exceedingly smart.

Leather alone and leather in combination with metal in some form are used in the new belts. Some show combinations of two colors—black and white, and red and white, tan and brown and gray and black. There are cutouts in the leather belt to show suede facings. Sometimes the cutouts are in the form of flowers, with the flower centers marked with metal beads.

For outing wear there are some dog-leash belts—circular or tubular belts of glazed leather. These are fastened with metal buckles and they come in various shades of brown, gray and tan.

There are narrow black suede and patent leather belts, some with tiny pockets on the front. There are other belts that go in sets, showing collars and cuffs to match the belts. These are in glazed leather or in suede.

Red is one of the colors chosen for belts, and there are some lovely ones of red suede. Some of these belts are trimmed with fringe, either in slashed suede or in straw, which is sometimes used for embroidering the belt in geometrical designs.

There are some interesting belts made of strips of leather laced in and out through metal rings, with long slashed fringes hanging down at the front.

New Knitted Fabric.

A frock that meets the demand for something novel in its fabric expression is developed in cross patch, a new knitted fabric. One model that is especially fetching is turned out in a semi-coat dress style, in chemise cut.

MILADY'S SHOES AND STOCKINGS

White or Beige Favored Colors for Footgear; All White Stockings the Summer Vogue.

White or beige seems to be the most acceptable color for footgear this summer, though often the light foundation shows strappings or stitchings of black or dark color.

While castor and beige are the leading shades in stockings at present all-white stockings are in demand for wear with white pumps and sandals. To satisfy the demand of an increasing number of young women the shops are now showing silk and lisle stockings in gay hues to be worn with white or beige shoes in place of those of matching hue.

Many of the outdoor shoes of the summer are of washable leather. As one girl put it, anything from yellow laundry soap to scented toilet soap answers the purpose of washing them very well. The point seems to be to wash the sole first, so that any mud there won't be smudged around the white or beige part of the shoe. The rest is quite easy.

Those who remember a former fashion for buckles, when we called the pumps whereon we posed them colonial pumps, are especially interested in the present fashion for placing buckles on shoes. The buckles are made in jet and steel and leather.

A Popular Collar.

The most popular collar that is found on the popular conceptions of fur coats for the new season is the semi-crushed collar. It is comfortable in its convertible possibilities, wearable for either extremely cold weather, or again on the milder days of winter.

Touch of Color.

Whether for suit wear or to be worn with separate skirts, white blouses hold the center of the stage. A touch of color may appear in the trimming, but the main portion of the blouse will be white.

Shame on Them.

PERHAPS there are a few mothers who do not know the virtues of Fletcher's Castoria. Perhaps there are a few who know that there are imitations on the market, and knowing this demand Fletcher's. It is to ALL motherhood, then, that we call attention to the numerous imitations and counterfeits that may be set before them.

It is to all motherhood everywhere that we ring out the warning to beware of the "Just-as-good". For over thirty years Fletcher's Castoria has been an aid in the upbuilding of our population; an aid in the saving of babies.

And yet there are those who would ask you to try something new. Try this. Try that. Even try the same remedy for the tiny, scarcely breathing, babe that you in all your robust womanhood would use for yourself. Shame on them.

Your Friend, the Physician.

The history of all medicines carries with it the story of battles against popular beliefs: fights against prejudice: even differences of opinion among scientists and men devoting their lives to research work; laboring always for the betterment of mankind. This information is at the hand of all physicians. He is with you at a moment's call be the trouble trifling or great. He is your friend, your household counselor. He is the one to whom you can always look for advice even though it might not be a case of sickness. He is not just a doctor. He is a student to his last and final call. His patients are his family and to lose one is little less than losing one of his own flesh and blood.

Believe him when he tells you—as he will—that Fletcher's Castoria has never harmed the littlest babe, and that it is a good thing to keep in the house. He knows.

RIVER IS BEDDED WITH GOLD

Expedition From the United States Expects to Retrieve Treasures of the Congo.

When the White Star liner Majestic sailed recently she carried with her an expedition composed of eight men from Katonah, N. Y., which hopes to penetrate 600 miles into the Belgian Congo in search of a gold field which they believe will prove as rich as the Klondike, said a recent issue of the New York Herald. The expedition expects a search of at least six months. All the while that the organization work was going on the facts relating to it were kept secret.

It all came about this way: Julius J. Dolgos, a chemist of Goldens Bridge, Katonah, was in the mounted forces operating in the Belgian Congo during the war. Back in 1917, while with a column of cavalry, he lost his way, toppled off a cliff, but suffered only slight injuries to himself and horse, and continuing he came to a brook, at which he stopped to refresh himself. It was what Dolgos saw while drinking water as he lay on his stomach that caused the expedition into the wilds.

The bottom of the brook seemed to Dolgos to be carpeted with gold. He thrust his hands in, picked up a handful of what he thought were pebbles, but found they were of a metallic substance. He thrust a handful into his pocket and proceeded on his way rejoining his unit, but not confiding in his comrades the secret of his find. Upon leaving the service he took the "pebbles" to an appraiser who purchased them from him, he said, for $1,500.

Dolgos got back to Goldens Bridge and Katonah eventually and there met Edward P. Barrett, supervisor of the town of Bedford, to whom he told his story. Barrett was so impressed that he took six other men into his confidence. They were A. C. Brower, Raymond Brower, Charles F. Ganung and Robert Eiseman of Katonah; William H. Odell, Jr., of South Norwalk, and Capt. Carlos de Mantanha of Brooklyn. These men with Barrett and Dolgos composed the party of prospectors who left on the Majestic. Barrett will travel as far as Brussels, where he will seek concessions necessary for the development of any property the expedition members may deem of value.

Pointed.

"Senator Penrose," said a Philadelphian, "had a neat way of putting things.

"At the Philadelphia club one evening a Philadelphia reformer came in for a good deal of criticism, on the whole, for the fellow was a meddling, arrogant, offensive chap.

"'Well, anyhow,' said a banker charitably, 'he's got his good points.'

"'Yes,' said Penrose, 'so's a porcupine.'"

Unpleasantly "Buzzed."

A four-year-old western boy had been told about so many lovely things enjoyed by his cousins in New Jersey that when he went there on a visit he was a little surprised at not finding an earthly paradise. On the morning after his first night spent in the state, he said to his mother: "I've just been buzzed by mosquitoes all night long!"

"Potential Energy."

Potential energy is that which exists by virtue of position as opposed to motion; that is, nonactive energy. Water stored in an elevated reservoir represents potential energy, as its liberation to a lower level may be utilized to effect work.

OF High School

September 11th is High School opening day and all your boys and girls, their vacation days past, will again resume their important duties of fitting themselves through their studies for life's various duties.

To do their best work they will need a number of things such as Clothing of different kinds, Hosiery and Footwear, and School Supplies of every kind.

For years Fogels Store has been the Student's Headquarters, and for weeks we have been preparing to keep our reputation good by laying in large and well-selected stocks of every article necessary to minister to their various wants.

For Boys And Girls

Lovely Middy Blouses in all the best colors and designs, of high qualities and elegant shapes.

Dresses of many kinds, latest styles, first-class fabrics well and handsomely made up. Footwear of all kinds, well-made serviceable Shoes that look as well as they wear, in low and high cuts of various leathers. Then Hosiery of several makes including the "Blackcat" so well and favorably known to our patrons. Also all the minor articles of dress required by girls, such as Collars, Gloves, Handkerchiefs etc.

Then for Boys we have a fine lot of Boys' Suits, dressy but strong enough to stand rough usage and keep presentable. Boys' Blouses and Knickerbockers of handsome, strong, wearing materials, just what live boys should have. Shoes that will not soon kickout at the toes, or rip, but will give good service despite hard knocks. Caps in many styles and "Blackcat" Stockings with knees threefold reinforced. Besides these all the other things the School Boy, needs.

School Supplies

Fogels' is famous for being Headquarters for all School Supplies, everything the student requires from Pins to Satchels, Pens, Pencils, Ink, Paper, Composition Books, "Companions," Crayons and all the rest.

MEATS of Quality and Purity

SINCE we have been in the Meat Business in Middletown we have always tried to sell you Quality Meats, the kind that we would have our children eat because we buy only the Blue Ribbon products that have been inspected and are pure and wholesome. We don't claim to sell the cheapest, but we do claim to sell the best Meats at reasonable prices.

A few days ago a lady said to us "I have tried them all and have come back HOME because I get the best services from your store; in Quality and Purity it reminds me of home because you keep it so clean".

Stop in and give us your next order or send the children. You can trust us to send just as good cuts by them.

was not created over night. Piggly Wiggly, as it is being introduced to Delaware represents the efforts of leading merchandise experts from many States during the past six years. During this time Piggly Wiggly stores have grown in number from ONE in Memphis, Tennessee, in 1916, to nearly 1600 in 394 cities in 43 States. They are now doing a business that amounts to approximately $7,000,000 monthly.

The profits of the Piggly Wiggly corporation are large, because of the low overhead cost permitted by the "Wait on yourself" method of handling customers, the large buying power and the locations chosen.

The reasonable profits and frequent turnover permit liberal and regular dividends payable to the stockholders of Piggly Wiggly.

Piggly Wiggly is now incorporated in Delaware, has become a part of Delaware, and will open about 30 stores in Delaware. Therefore, we feel reasonably sure of the successful growth of Piggly Wiggly in Delaware.

HAVE YOU BECOME A PART OF PIGGLY WIGGLY?

If not—there is still time. We invite you to investigate.

If you will 'phone Mr. E. R. Gibbons, at the Middletown Hotel, he will gladly introduce Piggly Wiggly to you.
